

Peanut Blog

An ounce of information

Agrocrops Launches University Internship Program to Build Future Industry Talent (India & Singapore)

Agrocrops has launched its University Internship Program for undergraduate and postgraduate students in commerce and agriculture, aimed at bridging academic learning with real-world industry exposure. The program offers three structured tracks across sustainability, research & development, new product development, finance, marketing, sales, data and business analytics, and management. Internships range from 90 to 180 days, with both paid and unpaid options, and can be aligned with credit-bearing academic requirements. The program emphasizes independent learning with limited handholding, supported by direct mentorship from senior leadership. This initiative reflects Agrocrops' commitment to sustainability, talent development, and building a strong pipeline of future professionals to support its growth ambitions.